WEDNESDAY EVENING, AUGUST 9, 1882.

GREAT MORTALITY FROM SNAKES AND TIGERS IN INDIA.-It may be startling to Europeans to learn that no fewer than 21,-990 persons were killed in India during the year 1880 by snakes and tigers. It is, too, at first sight, eminently unsatisfactory to hear that this loss of life, instead of decreasing with the advance of civilization has actually increased during the past five years; the number of victims in 1876 did not exceed 19,273. This statement appears almost incredible, and requires explanation, which will probably be found in the greater accuracy with which causes of death have been returned in India in recent years. The largest fatali-ty from snakes and wild beasts occurs in the Bengal Presidency, where, during last year, 10,064 persons are said to have died from snake bites, and 359 to have been killed by tigers. It appears from the weekly returns issued by the Sanitary Commissioner of the Punjab, that during the fortnight ending August 27th last, no fewer than 113 deaths resulted from snake bites in fifty-two of the largest cities of that province-equal to nearly 3,000 per annum. As the fatality from this cause is probably larger in the rural than in the town districts, it is evident that the province of Punjab must be responsible for a very large proportion of the ex-cessive fatality from this cause in the Bengal Presidency .- London Lancet.
